

SOCIETY LEADER AT PALM BEACH HAS A NURSE AND BABY CARRIAGE FOR PET PUP

Mrs. Chapin, her pet pup and its nurse at Palm Beach.

Mrs. C. D. Chapin, New York society woman at Palm Beach, created a sensation at the Florida winter resort by promenading on the board walk with a blanket-like cloak over her bathing suit, a Hawaiian parasol, pretty bathing slippers and her dog "Peggy," who is a nurse and a little carriage in which she rides when too tired to walk.

LOVE IN PAIN

The great auditorium, to Walt, had suddenly vanished as Janet began her faltering address of introduction to the brilliant lecturer. Lucy, at his side, vanished with the rest. All that Walt could see, hear and feel to the last breaking nerve in him, was that Janet was moving her lips before a great unseen audience—and that no words but her dry-lipped message of terror spoke to him. Janet, his Janet, was in terror and in pain!

When her stumbling words finally faltered out something, in Walt was concentrated all the stiffening of embarrassment which the whole audience felt. When Janet forgot the speaker's name, Walt did not breathe, nor unclench his fingers until he heard her repeat Roy Nicoll's whispered prompting. Then he saw her go off the stage. Without turning to Lucy, barely seeming to know she was there, he said, "Janet is in trouble. I am going to her!"

Walt fairly ran up the aisle and into the anteroom back of the stage. Lucy did not move. Her face remained fixed upon the platform. But in her eyes was the look of one who had been hit, but would not realize until later how badly she was wounded.

Walt tried to open the door of the anteroom, but found it locked. He tried another entrance, but found it guarded by a husky attendant.

"You can't get in here!" the man said, barring Walt's way.

"My wife is in there—I must see her!" Walt said, thrusting the attendant aside.

"I don't care—" the guard began, pushing Walt back. But the latter turned on him.

"Man alive, get out of my way!" he cried, his eyes speaking what his words left unsaid.

The fellow stepped aside.

Walt found the ante-room empty. He ran out into the street just in time to see Janet and Nicoll ride off, the lights in the limousine going out at the same instant.

Walt had to run to the corner before he could find a taxi. By then Nicoll's limousine was out of sight. He jumped into the cab, giving the chauffeur the address of his and Janet's home.

"Speed it, son, I'll stand the consequences!" he cried.

As the taxi shot downtown Walt's mind cleared as though by magic. Not only his mind, but his heart. Now he knew. It was Janet he wanted—Janet above everything, more than Lucy, success, work, all! How could he have forgotten such a clear, strong longing even for an instant? Everything else was ephemeral, dust, emptiness without Janet!

He dashed into the hall of his apartment house.

"My wife upstairs?" he asked the elevator boy, as he went into the cage.

"No; she ain't come hum fum de meeting, Mist' Stedman!" the boy replied, hiding in stolidity his excited eagerness for the situation.

Walt swallowed hard. He got out of the elevator, and leaving the house on the run, he rushed to a passing bus and rode to Washington square. The windows of his room were dark. She was not there, either.

He jumped to a passing bus and rode up Fifth avenue to Nicoll's house. Nicoll's car was just starting off from the curb. Walt caught hold of it and swung aboard.

THAT IS, something is wrong with baby, but we can't tell just what it is. All mothers recognize the term by the lassitude, weakness, loss of appetite, inclination to sleep, heavy breathing, and lack of interest shown by baby. These are the symptoms of sickness. It may be fever, congestion, worms, croup, diphtheria, or scarlatina. Do not lose a minute. Give the child Castoria. It will start the digestive organs into operation, open the pores of the skin, carry off the foetid matter, and drive away the threatened sickness.

"Is she in there?" Walt snarled. His voice was hoarse.

The chauffeur still did not answer. Walt jumped off the car and bounded up the steps of Nicoll's home. Thrusting his thumb against the bell button, he kept it there. There was no immediate response, and he hammered on the inner door with fists.

HINTS ON HEALTH.

Before and after a long tramp rub the limbs with olive oil. Rub the back parts of the thighs, the knees and the calves thoroughly. Soak the feet in hot water and rub the soles with lemon.

A doctor is quoted as saying that a handful of peanuts eaten before retiring will quiet the nerves of the stomach. The same authority also claims that a few peanuts eaten after each meal will aid the digestion, provided they are freshly roasted.

To make the hair stand out prettily around the face, dry it hanging over the face instead of down the back. Lie face down across a bed and let the hair drop over your face down on to a clean towel laid on the floor. Fluff the hair around the face with the finger tips.

A frequent footbath is not only soothing and refreshing but is beneficial to the health of the feet and that of the entire system. The foot is an excretory center and by keeping the pores clear and free the waste matter of the system is removed. A good footbath for nightly use is composed of water as hot as it can be borne in which a little powdered boracic acid has been dissolved. Let the feet soak for five minutes, wash them off in cooler water and finish with a good brisk rubbing of cold cream.

Tomatoes are so beneficial in their effect on the liver that they have been aptly styled the "vegetable calomel." Celery is an excellent nerve tonic and is good for people suffering from rheumatism. Watercress is credited with having tonic properties. We have always known that parsnips and carrots are good for the complexion. The reason for this is that both vegetables contain arsenic, which has an almost magical effect on the skin. Onions are supposed to be without an equal as a nerve tonic, blood purifier and general cleanser of the system. Lettuce is conducive to sleep because it contains opium. Parsley is excellent for the stomach and aids digestion.

GOVERNOR PROTECTS AGAINST ACTION OF HOUSE

Salt Lake, Feb. 8.—The house of representatives yesterday afternoon declined, for the time being, to act upon a request of the governor and recall of the Young prohibition bill for consideration of an amendment suggested by the chief executive and the attorney general, but finally consented to take it up today.

The action by the house did not escape the notice of Governor Simon Bamberger, who lost no time in sending a message to Speaker John F. Tolton and Representative R. W. Young, Jr., father of the bill, calling their attention to the procedure. Representative Young is opposed to the proposed amendment that would permit of the manufacture here of malt and brewed drinks containing not in excess of one-half of one per cent alcohol, claiming that under his interpretation of the Webb-Kenyon law and the supreme court construction upon it, it does not permit the shipment into the state of such drinks from the outside, hence would not be a discrimination against local manufacturers. He was instructed by the house to get written opinions on this matter from legal authorities for presentation today.

Governor Asks Change.

The prohibition measure was brought to the attention of the house yesterday in a letter from Governor Bamberger to Speaker Tolton in which the governor said, after referring to receipt of the bill:

"In the main I thoroughly approve of the measure. In almost every respect it meets my views exactly."

However, I would feel that I was remiss in my duty did I not call attention to certain phraseology of section 2 of the measure, which, to my mind, conveys a meaning not intended by the members of the state legislature who voted for the bill. This section provides that any beverage which contains in excess of one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume shall be deemed intoxicating liquor. I thoroughly approve of this definition, which is made on authority of the United States government. However, this same section classes with the intoxicants as above defined "all malt or brewed drinks." Apparently such beverages come within the purview of the proposed law, even though they contain less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume. Such a construction of alcohol placed on this provision of the bill by the attorney general and other attorneys with whom I have consulted.

Fears Litigation.

"Under strict construction of this section, I am advised, the manufacture of malted milk or the brewing of tea would be prohibited. I am sure that no court would so construe this provision, but I am not so sure that some attorneys would not attempt to invalidate this phraseology and thus involve the state in unnecessary litigation. Of course, the members of the legislature had no intention of prohibiting the manufacture and sale of harmless, non-intoxicating beverages. They intended only to prohibit the manufacture, sale or possession of intoxicants, a purpose which the governor enthusiastically shares.

The Webb-Kenyon act bars the shipment of intoxicating liquors into the territory, but does not prohibit the shipment of "all malt or brewed drinks" containing less than one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume into such territory. Hence we are in the position of prohibiting by law the manufacture within the state of non-intoxicants which manufacturers outside of the state are free to ship into our state. Such a discrimination is unjust and unwarranted, and I believe was not intended by the members of the legislature.

I believe that a change in our prohibition measure, to make it clear that the prohibited beverages are those containing in excess of one-half of one per cent of alcohol by volume, would not only add strength to the law, but greatly lessen the possibility of long litigation arising from our efforts to enforce to the letter the provisions of the law.

"May I not ask you to suggest to your honorable body that it request that the bill be returned from the governor to your honorable body for the slight amendment necessary to clear up the apparent ambiguity of the section to which I have referred?"

If this slight change, which I sincerely believe will strengthen the measure, is made I shall be proud and happy to affix my signature to the law and to enforce it to the end that on and after August 1, 1917, we shall have absolute prohibition in Utah.

"I am inclosing a letter from the attorney general suggesting the form of an amendment to meet the suggestions I have made."

Salt Lake, Feb. 8.—At a meeting of the State Federation of Prohibition and Betterment Leagues, held in the offices of the president, Heber J. Grant yesterday, the federation announced that it was perfectly satisfied with the Young prohibition bill in the form in which it passed both houses of the legislature.

The matter came before the federation as a result of the objections to the bill that have been made to the governor by persons interested in the manufacture of near-beer.

After a thorough discussion of the bill it was unanimously agreed that the bill as passed by the legislature is as near perfect as any bill could be, and that the state should not be turned over to the machinations and schemes of outside brewery corporations.

Conference With Governor.

Accordingly, a committee was appointed to wait on the governor and protest against altering the law as proposed, or in any other way that would weaken it. This committee, headed by Heber J. Grant, George A. Startup and John Henry Evans spent an hour with the governor going over the matter. At the request of the committee William E. Johnson, head of the publicity department of the Anti-Saloon League of America, which is working in co-operation with the Betterment league, participated in the discussion.

The governor informed the committee that the only question at issue was whether the Webb-Kenyon law would permit the shipping into the state of one-half of one per cent malt liquors in violation of the state law, as provided in the Young bill, and, at the same time, prevent the manufacture of the same within the state.

It was pointed out to the governor that if this claim held good as to one-half of one per cent malt liquor it would equally hold good as to two per cent liquor or liquor of any other strength commonly held to be non-intoxicating.

It was also pointed out to the governor that the Webb law plainly prohibits the interstate shipment of any liquor which the state law prohibits and has no reference whatever to its exact intoxicating quality or to the percentage of alcohol contained therein.

Danger Point Out.

It was the view of the leaguers that while the local brewers might be fairly well held down to the one-half of one per cent proposition, that no such restraint would exist as to the outside breweries, who would follow the usual policy of shipping in mild liquor at first under a fancy label, and as soon as established strong beer would appear under the same label and that it would be like chasing bees to prosecute successfully the swarms of bootleggers who would engage in this sort of traffic with swift and surreptitious slippage across the border, under the guise of one-half of one per cent.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS. USE SALTS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Advertisement.

of supply, but Utah can have no control over the hundreds of sources of manufacture beyond our borders. We must keep it all out by making the law broad enough to exclude all fermented malt liquors," said George A. Startup, vice president of the organization.

The league committee also invited the attention of the governor and attorney general to numerous legal authorities and citations to substantiate their contention that the Webb-Kenyon law prohibits the shipment into a state of such liquors as are prohibited by the state law and none other.

Authority in City.

Particular attention was called to the discussion of Joyce on intoxicating liquors on this point, which authority says, section 9, edition 1910:

"Where a statute forbids the sale of intoxicating liquor, and specifies therein the particular liquors which come within the meaning of that term, the naming of such liquors fixes their character as being within the prohibited class; and the question whether a particular liquor mentioned is or is not in fact intoxicating is not material.

"So where alcohol is declared by statute to be an intoxicating liquor it is such, regardless of the fact that the quantity drunk at an one time would not have that (intoxicating) effect and no matter how it may be diluted or disguised, it remains, and as a matter of law is intoxicating."

Attention was further called to a similar discussion and similar statements of the law contained in "Black on Intoxicating Liquors," in the American Encyclopedia of Law, and various other authorities, all of which were supported by numerous decisions of the highest courts in the land.
